CAMPBELESVILLE, July II, 1868.

Messrs, Editors: A beilliant ratification meeting was sheld here lust night. The meeting was spontaneous, on reception of the news of the nomination of Seymour and Blair by the New York convention. Hinge bonfires lighted up our streets, and the business and dwelling houses of our village were brilliantly illuminated. The young men improvised a lot of muskets and shotgms and made the welkin ring by volleys of musketry. The Campbellsville band enlivened the meeting by playing some of its choicest pieces.

Spirited speeches were made by Messrs. A. T. Goudy, J. H. Chandler, J. F. Caldwell, F. A. Netherland, R. S. Montague and br. A. H. Shively, which were received with enthusiastic cheers by the large crowd.

Another and larger meeting will be held on Wednesday night next. The people are alive to the issness Involved in the present Presidential conflict, and will give overwhelming majorities for the plowholders' and people's ticket against the bondholders' and tyrants' ticket of the Radical Jacobin party. Grant cannot get fifty votes in this county. All Conservatives and Democrats indorse the ticket presented by the New York convention. Everybody is sanguine of snecess. Yours truly,

Love and Liquor-A Tragedy of Indian

Love and Liquor—A Tragedy of Indian Life.

The following story, from the Milwaukee Wisconsin, reads like a romance of Cooper's, condensed, but its said to be a record of facts gathered by a gentleman who is collecting material for a history of the upper Mississhippi valley:

A party of thirty Winnebagoes came down from the late scalp dance at which the trihe was gathered on the Trempelean river, in the north, and encamped in French's island, in the Mississippi river, just above the St. Paul railroad depot, at La (rosse.

The lumi was under the control of a well-known chief of the Winnebagoes, named Wan-kee-se-hoong-er-er, or Snake (thief, who had two wives, See-sika and fle-nee-kee. See-sika was about thirty years of age, graceful in appearance, with a pleasant look and an interesting face. Among the whites she was a fuvorite, while with the Winnebagoes she was looked upon very kindly—indeed, adored with all the ardor of indian fervor. Snake (thief was a noted warrior of the Winnebagoes, and was very much liked by his trihe. He was a powerful and brawny fellow, and when sober he was peaceful and good natured; when dramk he was ugly and disagreeable. One of his favorite pastimes, when in this condition, was beating his wives. On Friday last, Snake (thief returned to his wigwann drank. See-sika was in the wigwam, and the chief commenced beating her over the head and shoulders. Priven to desperation, and unable longer to stand his brutullty, See-sika drew her knife and stabled the chief twice, the blade penetrating the heart of the warrior, who died instantly, while the last notes of the death-song were on his lips. The affair at once created a sensation among the ludians that when a man is slain, u relative must avenge his death by taking the life of the slayer. See-sika knew this, Some of the Winnebagoes urged her to fly, but she would not. With true Indian resignation, she folded her blanket about her and sat down in her wigwam, facing the door and awalting her avenger. It was ledieved by many that the-nee-kee, such intention. She monred the loss of her husband, but took no steps further than fo send a runner up the Trempeleau, where Snake Chiefs relatives were, to notify them of what had taken place. Meanwhile Se-es-ka sat in her cabin chanting the death song, stoically indifferent to what was going on about her, and only talking when questions were asked her.

On Snuday morning, an Indian from Trempeleau, made his appearance in cump. He was known as than-no-ne-go, and had evidently traveled without halting since he learned of the death of Snake Chief. Entering the camp, without a word, he walked solenmly to the place where the body of Snake Chief lay, took a long look at it, and then turned sullenly away. Nolody spoke to him, yet all watched with interest his movements. Deliberately loading his gun with buckshot, he uninterruptedly walked deliberately to the wigwam where Se-es-ka sut, she having remained there since the murder, took one look at the woman's face moved to denote that she labored under any excitement, but she sat there quietly and calmly, her eyes moving upward, and her voice, as the uncouth song escaped her lips, steady and firm. She knew that the avenger was before her, that in another moment her spirit would leave this frail tene-
